Joanne Lozar Glenn, an independent writer, editor, and educator, develops educational programs and materials for associations and other businesses. She began her career as a junior high teacher in Dayton, Ohio, after earning her M.S. in reading and curriculum supervision. After moving from Ohio to the Washington, DC, area, she served as editor for an international construction association, manager of education programs for an international healthcare association, and then launched a freelance career that allowed her to blend her two loves: education and communication.

Glenn has written more than 150 articles, brochures, and teaching guides during her career. Her writing has won awards from Association Trends (2008 Gold Winner), Communication Concepts (Apex Awards of Excellence in 2009, 2008, and 2007, and a Grand Award in 2006); the Society for National Association Publications (Bronze, 2005); and Southwest Writers Workshop (first place poetry and nonfiction, 1997). Her work as editor on an international medical business publication contributed to winning “most improved magazine” awards from Association Trends and Communication Concepts (2008–2010), and a bronze Excel award for best column (2010).

The author of Mentor Me: A Guide to Being Your Own Best Advocate in the Workplace and coauthor of 25+1: Communications Strategies for Business Education and Applying Evidence-Based Laboratory Medicine: A Step-by-Step Guide, Glenn also served as editor-in-chief of the well-received No One Path: Perspectives on Leadership from a Decade of Women in Technology Award Winners.

Glenn is an active member of Women in Technology, the International Women’s Writing Guild, Teachers and Writers, and the Associated Writing Programs. She has taught creative nonfiction and other writing and publication classes in the adult education programs since 1997, and sponsors annual “Get Away, Get Writing” retreats at the beach.
